Christian Rangen is a strategist, author, entrepreneur and business school lecturer. He consults companies around the world on innovation, business models, leadership and change. He helps companies on strategic transformation and corporate entrepreneurship. Most recently, he has been developing and running corporate accelerator programmes on smart cities, energy, digital health and space.

Rangen is co-founder of Engage Innovate, leading pre-seed investments in early stage technology companies. He also leads the global open-source, R&D project, Strategy Tools for the Next Generation, to develop a series of new visual strategy and innovation tools. Most notably Three Levels of Business Models and Transformation Architecture.

At BI - Norwegian Business School he has taught extensively on strategy, innovation, leadership and change. Today, most of his time is spent developing and running Executive Education programmes. He recently developed the Executive Short Programmes, Strategic Innovation in the Global Oil & Gas Industry, diving into the structural challenges and opportunities in the global energy industry. Outside the business school, he has designed numerous innovation management programmes.
