JENNY RADCLIFFE

World-class, expert trainer and consultant with deep expertise in negotiations, deception, communications, and understanding human behaviour.

LONDON SPEAKER BUREAU

Topics

- Body Language
- Communications
- Social Engineering

Jenny Radcliffe – aka "The People Hacker" is an expert in Social Engineering, negotiation, persuasion and influence, non-verbal communication and deception, using her skills to help clients from global corporations and law enforcement, to poker players, politicians and the security industry.

Jenny speaks, consults and trains people in the skills of "people hacking" and explains how "Social Engineering" using psychological methods can be a huge threat to organisations of all sizes. She reveals how that same knowledge is a valuable tool for security professionals of all types in the prevention of these attacks, scams and cons of all kinds.

Using a blend of anecdotes, science and humour, Jenny is an exceptional and highly impactful speaker. A regular keynote at major security events (Infosec, IPExpo, Rant, DISA, Nordic IT Security, ICS2, Trend Micro, Cisco, NTT, Bright talk, Cyber Security Week, London Fraud Forum, SC Congress, ITWeb) and multiple TEDx contributor, Jenny has been a guest expert on security, scams and social engineering for various television and radio shows as well as multiple online media.

Jenny is the host of the internationally successful podcast "The Human Factor" (Itunes) which interviews people from all walks of life about social engineering, security, business and life.