

SHEREE ATCHESON

LONDON
SPEAKER
BUREAU

- Multi award-winning Global Diversity
- Inclusion Leader
- Published Author

Listed as one of the UK's Top Most Influential Women in Tech & an international multi-award winner for her services to Diversity & Inclusion in industry, Sheree Atcheson is featured by Thinkers50 as one of their Radar Class of 2022. Her debut book "Demanding More" was listed as one of the best books of the summer '21 by the Financial Times.

Sheree is a Global Diversity, Equity and Inclusion Senior Executive; Advisory Board Member, Women Who Code; Contributor, Forbes. She is the Author of "Demanding More" (with Kogan Page Publishing) – a book which aims to teach readers about how deliberate exclusion has been in systems and society, so we can be purposefully and deliberately inclusive moving forward.

Topics

- Author
- Society
- Technology
- Women

Sheree is a Global Diversity & Inclusion Senior Exec (ex. Deloitte, Monzo & Peakon), having worked in many regions developing tailored, data-driven DE&I strategies, with clear goals and lines of accountability to embed success and inclusion that scales. Sheree recently joined Valtech as the Global Director of Diversity & Inclusion.

As a passionate advocate for gaining/retaining women in the industry, in 2013, she launched & led the award-winning U.K. expansion of Women Who Code the world's largest non-profit globally dedicated to women in tech, where she now sits as an Advisory Board Member.

As an industry leader, Sheree Atcheson has spoken at many global events, conferences and leadership sessions and is regularly profiled for her work, having been featured in many publications, such as Forbes, Business Insider, BBC, FastCompany, Evening Standard, HuffPost, Business Post, Marie Claire, Wired, ComputerWeekly, The Guardian, Sunday Telegraph, Newsletter & many more.

The aim of her career is ensuring people are aware of the fantastic opportunities the industry has to offer & make certain that all humans are able to benefit from these & reach their full career potential.